

For Immediate Release:

Press Contact:

Jina Gaines

Rhodes Communications

+1 757 451 0602

jgaines@rhodescomm.com

www.rhodescomm.com

RHODES COMMUNICATIONS ANNOUNCES NEW CLIENT

NORFOLK, Va. – April 5, 2006 – International Communications Group (ICG) has selected Rhodes Communications to supply public relations services for the company’s wireless communications applications.

ICG, located in Newport News, Va., is a recognized leader in the development of mobile satellite communications integration, automation and management systems. The company serves the aerospace, military and maritime industries by engineering products and solutions for aeronautical voice and data services. ICG's devices support mobile and remote communications applications where automation and communications management facilities are required.

Rhodes Communications is responsible for writing and distributing press releases and providing public relations support at major trade shows worldwide. The company will also develop new trade advertisements and sales literature, manage ICG’s advertising and media placement in U.S. and global markets, re-design the Website and launch a new branding and positioning campaign.

About Rhodes Communications

Based in Norfolk, Va., Rhodes Communications (www.rhodescomm.com) is a full-service public relations, advertising and marketing communications firm with over 20 years of experience. The company serves a diverse, international client base and specializes in business-to-business promotions in vertical markets including the maritime, aviation, law enforcement and security, trucking, surveying GIS, construction and telecommunications industries.

- end -